To Whom It May Concern:

Daniel Quinn has been a valued employee at Work at Play Media Labs for the past three years. A skilled developer who enjoys new platforms, new languages and new challenges, Dan has brought a diverse range of skills to bear at our office and is equally comfortable working with small boutique customers as he is with large corporations.

Dan's skills include PHP and Python programming, RESTful API architecture, and Android development. He has been able to act both in a leadership role, and as a valued team member on various projects.

Beyond his abilities as a programmer, Dan has been an important player on a variety of internal and external projects. He loves a good coding challenge and is inspired by difficult problems and new technology. Dan will often take time out of his schedule to help other developers conquer a particularly difficult challenge.

Dan will be missed by his peers. He is friendly and outgoing, often inviting other staff members out for lunches and social events around the city. Dan has a wealth of skills to offer and we are sorry to see him go.
